Execution set Feb. 3

Creech has date with firing squad

By MARILYN HAUK ESSEX
The Associated Press

BOISE — Condemned murderer Thomas Eugene Creech was ordered executed on Feb. 3 by a state district judge Friday after exhausting all his avenues of appeal in the state courts.

But Creech's attorney said a stay will be sought on Monday while the case is taken to the federal courts.

Fourth District Judge Robert Newhouse signed the death warrant for Creech, 35, who has changed his mind several times about whether he wants to be executed. It is the fourth execution date that has been scheduled for the former church sexton.

Although state law allows executions to be either by firing squad or injection, defense attorney Rolf Kehne said prison officials earlier said if an execution was carried out, it would be by firing squad.

The new execution date was set after a long legal battle over whether Creech could withdraw his guilty plea for the 1981 slaying of David Jensen, 23, a prison inmate, who was bludgeoned to death with a sack of batteries in May, 1981. Jensen and Creech, who was serving three consecutive murder sentences at the time, were in an exercise yard at the Idaho State Penitentiary when Jenson died.

Kehne said the appeals over whether the guilty plea could be withdrawn have been exhausted in the state, so he will now focus his efforts on appealing the actual death sentence.

On Monday, a request will be made with Newhouse to stay the execution, which Kehne said he expects will be denied. Kehne said he will move up through the court system in asking for a stay until one is granted. The court progression is the Idaho Supreme Court, U.S. District Court, U.S. Circuit Court and the U.S. Supreme Court, Kehne said.

Kehne said he feels sure a stay will be granted at the federal level because there are constitutional issues raised in Creech's death sentence.

Kehne said Creech's "suicidal state" at the time he gave the guilty plea will be part of the appeal. Creech was extremely

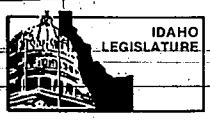
Major tax proposals emerge

House gets sales tax hike, Economic Recovery Act

By QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press



BOISE — What could be the two major tax proposals of the 1986 legislative session emerged in the Idaho House on Friday.

One of them, a bill raising Idaho's sales tax from 4 to 5 percent in March, won preliminary approval for a House committee.

And the second, the Economic Recovery Act of 1986, was introduced in the House as a personal bill, with nine sponsors.

That measure, originally prepared by a team of two Democrats and two Republicans, wound up being sponsored by four Democrats and five Republicans. It was referred to the House Revenue and Taxation Committee.

With only one dissenting vote, that committee voted to print and introduce the sales tax increase bill prepared by Rep. Mack Neibaur, R-Paul.

He said it would solve the state's current financial problems, if state agencies cut spending a bit, and has at least "a chance" of clearing the Legislature.

Committee Chairman Rep. Steve Antone, R-Rupert, said Neibaur's proposal won't be rushed through. He said that after it is introduced and returns to committee, he will assign it to a subcommittee which will be evaluating a number of tax bills.

Tax officials say a 1-cent increase in the sales tax would raise about $4.5 million a month. Neibaur's proposal would use the money generated through June to help erase the huge deficit looming in the current state budget.

The measure also calls for putting $15 million per year of the increased tax in a reserve account, which could be used by future legislatures only if two-thirds of the members of both House and Senate agree.

The bill boosts the money available for the state building construction and maintenance programs and increases revenue-sharing for cities and counties.

Neibaur told the committee he wants to put $15 million per year in the reserve account, up to a maximum of $75 million, to avoid future budget crises.

"In the long run, this kind of account will save taxpayers a lot of money," he said.

For a year, a 1-cent increase in sales taxes will generate about $62 million, Neibaur said. About $8.5 million would be distributed to cities and counties under a formula already in place, he said.

That will leave about $31.5 million to add to next year's budget. "I think we can get by with this kind of money," Neibaur said.

The current state budget deficit is estimated at between $20 million and $27 million. Neibaur said his bill provides $15 million toward that deficit, and the rest can be erased by continuing a 2.5 percent spending holdback ordered by the governor next year.

Conservative Rep. Robert Forrey, R-Nampa, voted against the bill. He said all Republicans ran last year on a platform against any tax increases, and he will not vote for a

Idaho legislator lauded for good deed he didn't know about

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

BOISE — Sen. Atwell Parry, R-Melba, got credit Friday afternoon for a good deed he didn't even know he had done.

In his speech to a special afternoon session of the Idaho Legislature, W. Cleon Skousen, leader of the National Center for Constitutional Studies (NCCS), announced that all the members of the Idaho House and Senate would receive a free copy of his book, "The Making of America," due to the fund-raising efforts of Parry and others.

"That's news to me," Parry said after Skousen's speech. Parry said he was not in the House chamber during the speech and had not before heard he was paying for copies of the book for Idaho's 126 legislators.

After asking Skousen about it, Parry was told the books would be paid for out of funds he raised by selling tickets to a Skousen talk scheduled for Feb. 18.

Skousen opened his speech to the House by thanking Idaho legislators for going to a recent Phoenix, Ariz., conference on the U.S. Constitution sponsored by NCCS and Causa, the anti-communist arm of Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church.

Skousen said the conference was attended by over 400 politicians from 39 states and that Causa paid most of the cost of the conference. NCCS originally intended to give the conference only for Arizona legislators but was able to spread the word to many more people with Causa's help, he said.

"Now, there's no such thing in America as a free lunch — you just can't help but say, 'Where's the hook?'" Skousen said.

In the case of Causa's funding from the Unification Church's businesses in Korea and Japan, there is no hook. In 1950 Rev. Moon was rescued from his communist captors in Korea by American troops and will raise money for any group that will help the United States, Skousen said.

The message delivered at the conference is an examination of the founding fathers' "original success formula" in the Constitution and how parts of that have "become a little frazzled."

Skousen said there was no discussion of Unification Church theology or any other kind of theology at the conference, which Parry and Sen. Larrey Anderson, R-Twin Falls, attended.

He said he is jealous of the reputation of NCCS and would not have cooperated with Causa if he felt it would damage the reputation of his group.

Skousen praised Idaho politicians for their adherence to the Constitution. "This is a special Legislature here in Idaho," Skousen said. Constitutional correctness runs strong in the state, he said, with Idaho's delegation to Congress consistently scoring high in the ratings of conservative groups.

Congressmen who score high in those ratings need to know more about the Constitution, "When you get into trouble, that's when you need to know who has the answers," Skousen said.

Gramm-Rudman fate up to courts

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The new federal budget-balancing law puts congressional power over the government's purse strings on "automatic pilot" and should be declared unconstitutional, challengers told a court Friday.

But defenders of the Gramm-Rudman act, designed to reduce the annual deficit from the current $212 billion to zero in five years, argued that the measure was a lawful delegation by Congress of its budget-making powers and should be upheld.

The three-judge U.S. District Court panel hearing the case — shaping up as possibly the most far-reaching constitutional separation-of-powers issue before the federal judiciary since the Watergate era — took the matter under advisement after a three-hour hearing.

The court's ruling is certain to be appealed directly to the Supreme Court regardless of outcome.

Twelve members of Congress, led by Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., and the National Treasury Employees Union are challenging the constitutionality of the new law, which would trigger across-the-board budget cuts if Congress failed to institute specified annual deficit reductions.

Attorney Alan Morrison, representing the dozen members of Congress, told the court the act was enacted because "Congress has refused to pass the very laws to do what it contends must be done — that is, balance the federal budget."

Inflation rate low — B3

CHICAGO — Retail coffee prices are expected to rise soon, perhaps as much as $1.50 a pound, because a drought in Brazil has destroyed a major part of that nation's coffee crop.

No one knows for sure what the ultimate price will be, "but there is no question that retail prices are going to go up," said Dick Ponte, a vice president for Stop & Shop Supermarket Co. in Quincy, Mass., which has 114 stores in New England.

The most immediate signal for Ponte and other merchants across the country are wholesale prices, which have been increasing since fall.

But the trouble traces southward to Brazil, the No. 1 coffee-producing nation, where drought destroyed an estimated 40 percent to 65 percent of this season's crop.

Major wholesalers in this country have gone through a series of price increases since October, the latest on Friday when General Foods Corp. increased its flagship Maxwell House brand by 56 cents a pound, to $3.96 at wholesale.

Procter & Gamble on Wednesday added on 50 cents a pound, bringing its Folgers brand to $3.95, an increase of $1.27 over its October price.

Another big American roaster, Chock Full O' Nuts, won't say what it charges grocery stores but has instituted increases comparable to Folgers.

Prices also have been rising on the futures market, where traders buy and sell contracts for future delivery to wholesalers, leading analysts to expect further hikes from wholesalers.

The contract on the Coffee, Sugar and Cocoa Exchange in New York for delivery in March was a little more than $2.60 a pound on Thursday, almost double what it was in September. Analyst Deirdre Macleod of Heinold Commodities in Chicago said she expects the futures price to go to $3.00 soon and possibly

White House welcomes ban on arms sales to Libyans

By BARRY SCHWEID
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration, hoping to reverse European resistance to U.S. economic sanctions against Libya, welcomed on Friday a decision by Italy to suspend weapons shipments to Col. Moammar Khadafy's government.

An official, who insisted on anonymity, said the Italian "inner cabinet" also had decided to re-examine trade and other business activity in light of the "grave difficulties" posed by purported acts of terrorism.

In what appeared to be the first instance of solid support for the U.S. policy, the Italian government also reportedly decided to "obtain clarification" from Tripoli of the allegations pressed by the United States.

Deputy Secretary of State John C. Whitehead plans to visit Rome and other allied capitals next week to solicit support for the U.S. policy to punish Libya for his purported support of terrorism.

The administration hopes Italy, the Libyans' biggest trading partner, will also adopt some restrictions on business dealings with the Tripoli government, which the State Department this week linked to the Dec. 27 terrorist attacks at the Rome and Vienna airports that killed 19 people, five of them Americans.

In another development, Canada on Friday cut off aid to companies seeking new business with Libya, banned the sale of oil drilling equipment to the North African nation and asked Canadians not to take jobs there vacated by departing Americans.

Prime Minister Brian Mulroney announced the measures after a Cabinet meeting. He said they were Canada's response to a "moral issue" and were not linked to President Reagan's request for sanctions against Libya because of what the U.S. administration said is that nation's support for international terrorism.

Spain, meanwhile, which buys about one-third of its natural gas from Libya, has privately notified Washington that while it was opposed to terrorism it could not join in an economic boycott.

However, Spanish trade with the North African country has been in decline because Libya buys on credit and is slow to pay, said an official who insisted on anonymity.

Whitehead is expected to leave in mid-week and make stops in West Germany, Britain and possibly other European countries. He is not likely to go to Madrid in light of Spain's "special relationship" with the Arab world, the official said.

While the allied governments are reluctant to back the U.S. policy, public opinion in the countries is considered to be more sympathetic to it, another official said.

Reacting to Italy's suspension of weapons shipments to Libya, State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb said "we welome that as a statement of policy. The U.S. government has been following a more rigorous policy forX3ome time. We hope that other governments will recognize the value of that."

New contracts were banned by Italy in 1981. The action taken by Rome will stop shipments under pre-1981 contracts.

Many of the European nations have said they will wait for consultations in the 12-nation Common Market trading bloc before deciding on anti-Libyan economic actions.

At the White House, meanwhile, spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan had sent messages to U.S. allies about the sanctions and allegations of Libya's support for terrorism.

tax increase under any circumstance.

Forrey said he would prefer to cut most agency spending by 9 percent the rest of this year, except the Department of Corrections and public schools. He would cut one-half of 1 percent from the public school budget.

Asked if that were realistic, Forrey said, "It's realistic as far as I'm concerned. We over-appropriated last year. In reality, we voted to raise taxes when we approved last year's budget, and we didn't tell the people about it now."

Neibaur said he has not checked support for his bill, but feels it has at least a chance of passing the House. Similar legislation in recent years has been killed in the Senate Local Government and Taxation Committee, headed by Sen. Dane Watkins, R-Idaho Falls.

Like Forrey, Watkins has vowed not to allow a tax increase this session. Watkins has gone so far as to say he'd rather have a public flogging than vote for a tax increase this year.

Neibaur said members of Watkins' committee favor his bill, and they will at least force Watkins to bring it up for a vote.

Representatives L. Ed Brown of Pocatello, Tim Tucker of Porthill, Larry Echohawk of Pocatello and Don Loveland of Boise have been working on the Economic Recovery Act for months, including a statewide series of hearings.

They were joined as sponsors on Friday by Democratic representatives Pete Black of Pocatello and George Johnson of Lewiston. New Republican cosponsors were James Ligas of Moscow, Hilde Kellogg of Post Falls and Robert Fry of Horseshoe Bend.

The bill calls for a 5 percent sales tax rate and a boost in individual state income taxes, which now top out at 7½ percent. The bill proposes a top tax of 10 per cent.

It also removes a law limiting property tax increases by local units of government to no more than 5 percent per year; allows school districts to pass overrides for up to five years at a time; authorizes local-option city and county taxes and sets up a Budget Reserve Account.

to $3.50 by mid or late February.

Ponte said his Stop & Shop stores now sell coffee at retail for $2.19 to $2.60, but that was based on previous wholesale prices. Ponte said Stop & Shop has not raised prices yet because it is waiting for competitors to make the first move.

New England prices, Ponte said, are usually well below other sections of the country because of the highly competitive nature of food retailing there.

"Based on the information we have, I wouldn't be surprised to see $4 retail coffee (in New England) eventually," Ponte said, adding that kind of increase will be seen nationwide.

"Whenever there is a change in wholesale, it has to be reflected at retail," said Audrey McCafferty, manager of corporate news for The Kroger Co.

She said most national brands in Cincinnati, where the company is headquartered, were increased to a retail price of $4.09 a pound last month to adjust for wholesale boosts of 60 to 65 cents.

Prices vary at Kroger's 1,300 stores across the country depending on local situations, she said, but "when you have raises of that magnitude, they have to be reflected" on the supermarket shelves.

depressed at the time he pleaded guilty, and Newhouse denied Kehne the opportunity to convince Creech to change his mind, Kehne said.

Another part of appealing the death sentence will be the fact that in Idaho, a judge hands down the death sentence rather than a jury, Kehne said.

Kehne said Friday that he was notified earlier in the week that the Idaho Supreme Court had denied Creech's petition for rehearing.

That petition, filed last summer, asked the state's high court to reconsider an earlier ruling that Creech couldn't withdraw the guilty plea.

Newhouse sentenced Creech to death in January, 1982, but Kehne managed to obtain stays of execution over the objections of Creech, who contended he wanted to die.

In May, 1983, Creech sought to have his guilty plea withdrawn, contending he had acted in self defense in Jenson's death and that he made the plea because of threats to himself and his family.

Last June, Creech once again asked to die because a woman he allegedly married by proxy earlier in the year left town with his younger brother, Ron, 27, according to prison officials. But Creech's mother, Faye Creech, said her son "had a talk with the Lord" and decided later that he indeed wanted to live.

This is the fourth execution date that has been scheduled for Creech. The last was May 23, 1984, but was stayed because appeals over whether the guilty plea could be withdrawn.

Speech

Skousen said his book is a history and discussion of the Constitution and may be soon used as a textbook in schools. In addition, he said, NCCS is preparing a Constitutional trivia game for release just before the 200th anniversary of the signing of the Constitution in 1987.

That game will be used in a nationwide contest to select students best versed in the contents of the Constitution.

Skousen's address followed a speech by Dr. Haing Ngor, a Cambodian physician who recently won acclaim for his role in the movie, "The Killing Fields."

Ngor told the legislators to wake up to the spread of communism before Russia invades the United States.

Skousen and Ngor were brought to Boise by Rep. Liz Allan, R-Caldwell, for a freedom fighters' award banquet Friday night.

Victims of crash will be identified

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite problems caused by missing medical and dental records, the Army said Friday it remains confident that virtually all of the 248 soldiers killed in an airliner crash last month will ultimately be identified for burial by their families.

The service, in a brief written statement, acknowledged the identification of bodies from the Dec. 12 crash at Gander, Newfoundland, had turned into a slow, tedious process and that only 115 of the soldiers had been identified to date.

High pressure aloft was over the Intermountain area and a trough of low pressure aloft lay along the Pacific coast on Friday, bringing a southwesterly flow of air over northern parts of Idaho.

The National Weather Service said a weakening Pacific disturbance would move over the top of the ridge overnight and today, bringing a chance of rain or snow showers to the north.

Skies over Idaho cleared early Friday afternoon, but areas of fog persisted in the north near Coeur d'Alene and in the southwest from just west of Boise to the Oregon border.

Clouds were expected to increase overnight in the north as the next Pacific disturbance moved across the northern part of the state.

The highest temperature in the state Friday was reported at Grangeville with 54 degrees while Bear Lake registered the low of 6 degrees below zero.

The extended outlook for Southern Idaho calls for areas of fog and low clouds Monday, otherwise fair. Rain or snow spreading over the area Tuesday and Wednesday. Highs 30 to 40. Lows in the teens to mid 20s.

University economists say state revenue will grow 7%

BOISE (AP) — Economists for the state's three universities, confident the Idaho economy has finally hit bottom, are projecting a 7 percent growth in personal income for the state this year that will generate more than $600 million in general tax revenues.

Their forecast, presented to the Legislature's Revenue Projections Committee on Friday, was the highest yet offered for the budget year that will begin in July, exceeding the estimates of Gov. John Evans and others by more than $25 million.

It also appeared to contradict the economic outlook numerous economists, business and industry leaders have been giving the panel all week. At best, First Security Bank analyst Kelly Matthews said, the state will be lucky to continue the stagnant economic performance of the past year.

"The question is whether we're going to slide in 1986 from 1985 or whether we're going to be maintaining," Matthews said.

"We can't imagine how things can actually be that bad in 1986," Charles Skoro of Boise State University told the panel in commenting on earlier, and much more dismal, revenue projections.

But Skoro, defending his projections for real growth over the next 12 to 18 months, said the decline in interest rates, critical to the state's resource-based industries, will finally end contraction in those sectors while gains continues in the service and retail trade areas.

At the same time, however, Skoro and the other university economists conceded their unwarranted optimism of a year ago and revised their outlook for tax receipts in the current budget year down over $27 million to just under $564 million.

He blamed the excessive forecast on the failure to predict and account for rising consumer debt during 1985 along with what he described as declining consumer confidence that led to a vastly overblown estimates of sales tax receipts.

The same mistake was made by other forecasters as well last year and by the committee itself, whose revenue projection a year ago led to the current budget of $587 million and a deficit of over $20 million.

"I'm shocked that after you guys missed the mark as much as you did last year that you come back with the same thing again," said Sen. Vern Lannen, D-Pinehurst.

But Skoro argued that the economic upheaval that has kept critical sectors of the Idaho economy depressed in recent years has finally ended and an upturn, albeit modest, can be expected.

"We think the adjustments to the changed economy, if not complete, are virtually complete," he said.

F&G to seek resident license hike

BOISE (AP) — The state Fish and Game Commission, pressing for an increase in nonresident license fees this year, will probably ask state lawmakers to boost resident hunting and fishing license fees next year, according to Director Jerry Conley.

"It will be highly contested," Conley admitted Friday after advising legislative budget writers of the probable move during the 1987 session.

No details on the resident license plan have been worked out yet, but Conley said the request that will be submitted to lawmakers next year will likely call for a "substantial increase." He predicted it would run as much as $5 for a combination hunting and fishing license that now costs $15.50. The higher fee would take effect in 1988.

The last general license increase was in 1981, and at that time Conley promised lawmakers another would not be sought for at least five or six years.

But since then, the department has lost buying power even with inflation running at only 3 percent to 4 percent so "we've fallen behind and we just need to make that up," Conley said.

A $5 increase would generate about $3.5 million in additional revenue for the department, which finances its $20 million-plus annual operation primarily from license revenues and federal funds.

Conley admitted, however, that whatever the amount of the increase sought, not all of it will be granted, the same situation that will probably occur this session with the commission's request for a major increase in nonresident hunting fees.

That plan, intended to bring Idaho nonresident charges in line with surrounding states and possibly boost the use of Idaho guides by out-of-state hunters, would hike the basic license from $75 to $85 and then increase the tag fees for big game by varying amounts up to $98 for elk. Overall, the higher fees would raise about $900,000.

States key to deficit

BOISE (AP) — Democratic Congressman Richard Stallings, citing the demands of both the voters and their state Legislatures for a balanced federal budget, says the success of the new deficit reduction plan rests, at least partly, with the states.

Addressing both chambers of the Idaho Legislature Friday, the 2nd District congressman said the years of pressure from state officials on Washington for an end to federal red ink paid off last month with passage of the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings bill.

That measure, Stallings said, "will balance the budget in five years if Congress sticks to it and if the states will support that resolve."

"Given the financial condition of our country, the financial condition of our people, we're going to have to make some tough decisions," Stallings said. "We have to put partisan differences aside and look to the real issue at hand and that is the survival of Idaho."

Attorney general plays down fears of governments over insurance gap

BOISE (AP) — Pointing out that state law provides many protections to local officials and the governments they represent, Idaho Attorney General Jim Jones is suggesting that those officials may be more concerned than necessary about the absence of liability insurance.

"While the lack of liability coverage is and should be of real concern to all of us," Jones said in a memorandum to all local government officials, "resignations and actions are not necessary or advisable under the circumstances."

The city and county associations are putting together a pool insurance program to take over from conventional liability policies that expired at the end of December in an insurance industry decision to pull out of the state.

But while some officials have indicated they plan to take no actions until coverage is restored, Jones warned that they could be held liable for not carrying out their duties just as easily as for handling them negligently.

He also said there is no chance for an official to be personally liable in connection with an official action unless it involved criminal or grossly negligent conduct, and even if he is legitimately sued for an official action the government must defend him.

State law also provides for mandatory property tax levies to pay off adverse court judgments in liability cases, Jones said, so "there are methods available to pay claims when there is no insurance."

Number of inmates seen doubling

OROFINO (AP) — The prison population at the Idaho Correction Institution here probably will double by this summer, Warden Dennis Bodily says.

Part of the prison has been renovated and about 50 male medium-security inmates will be moved to the prison by March, Bodily said.

About five new correction officers will begin training Monday for jobs at the prison, he said.

The inmates are being transferred because of overcrowding at other facilities, corrections officials said.

Symms says he'll back military action against terrorism

BOISE (AP) — If necessary, Sen. Steve Symms says he would back the use of military force to stop such terrorists as those who use Libya as a base.

"If we don't resist it, they will just keep on doing it," Symms told a news conference here Friday.

If President Reagan chooses to take stronger action, such as military, Symms said, he will support the president.

But Symms said he has "no illusions" that the United States will be able to get its European allies to fully go along with the president's effort to stop trade with Libya.

He said it's almost impossible to stop trade in Libyan oil.

The president's embargo will not affect this country's efforts to sell wheat to Libya, Symms said, "because I doubt we ever sold them any in the first place."

Since the trade embargo was imposed, Symms said, it now is illegal for Americans to sell wheat to Libya.

Symms said he considers terrorism as "acts of war against American citizens," and they should be treated that way.

Indigent care plan 'sweet and sour'

Commissioners react to task force's proposal

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — County commissioners in the Magic Valley had mixed reactions to a governor's task force proposal to shift the responsibility for indigent medical bills from the counties to the state.

While some commissioners wouldn't mind putting up the job, they feel the cost control is at the local level.

The task force, headed by former Blaine County prosecutor Keith Roark, said a state medical indigency program operated by the state Department of Health would standardize the claim process and wouldn't cost any more to the counties and taxpayers than what they now are paying.

Citing what he called sketchy state guidelines on indigency, Roark told legislators Thursday that counties would fund a state program on a per-capita fee of about $7.15 per resident, which would add up to less than the amount they currently set aside in their indigent budgets.

In addition, a state program would be eligible for federal funds because it would use federally approved rules to decide eligibility.

A majority of the state's 44 counties now participate in a voluntary self-insurance-type program to help them pay catastrophic, or large, medical bills for the county's poor. The program was started by the Idaho Association of Counties a year ago in response to escalating medical bills and is now a separate entity.

Participating counties pay a premium into a pool of funds from which medical bills are paid. The counties also pay the first $10,000 on each bill before the remaining costs are paid by the catastrophic program.

Robert Thackeray, the Gooding County Commission chairman, called the task force proposal a "sweet and sour situation."

The state probably would have more expertise than the counties in the area of social services, he said. That's a plus for the proposal. And then, there's that annual turmoil the county indigent budget creates for the commissioners, he added.

Under the law, indigent budgets aren't restricted by the 5-percent annual limitation placed on other county budget items.

"Maybe that's well and good, it (the indigent budget) isn't restricted. But then you have a taxpayer asking, 'Why have may taxes risen?' It creates a real poor situation for us to explain," Thackeray said.

On the negative side of a state-operated program is the potential lack of local control, he added. There also would be those people who wouldn't feel comfortable going to a state office for assistance.

Any state program would have to communicate with the counties on medical bills because the counties might be able to provide information not readily available about the case, he said.

Thackeray added that he is satisfied with the catastrophic program. Without the program, smaller counties are faced with the potential disaster of paying an indigent medical bill about the size of their county budget.

"The catastrophic program is a very unified effort and showed very good judg-

December's chill — 12.8 degrees per day

By MICHAEL VANAUSDELN
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — December continued the record-breaking cold trend set by the month of November, according to the National Weather Service.

The average monthly temperature for December was 12.8 degrees, cutting the previous record almost in half — set in 1906 with an average temperature of 20.6 degrees.

December's average temperature was 14 degrees colder than the November average and 18.4 degrees colder than the normal average monthly temperature. There were 19 consecutive days with below-zero readings, with temperatures as low as minus-15 degrees on Dec. 12 and as high as 49 degrees on Dec. 2.

Total precipitation for the month was only .79 of an inch, .39 lower than normal. The most recorded during the month was .29 of an inch on Dec. 9. There were only seven days in which more than .01 of an inch of moisture was measured.

For the year, the Magic Valley area received 8.10 inches of precipitation, 1.10 inches lower than normal. But precipitation was up from Oct. 1 through Dec. 31 with 3.63 inches measured, .85 of an inch above normal.

Three new records for daily low temperatures were set. A reading of 14 degrees below zero on Dec. 11 tied the old record set in 1972. A reading of minus-8 degrees on Dec. 28 froze out the old record of zero set in 1930. And a reading of minus-4 degrees on Dec. 16 tied the old record set in 1949.

Fuel bills are likely to be more costly than they were at this time a year ago. The NWS reported that, based on maintaining a 65-degree temperature, there were 1,610 heating degree days — 562 more than normal. Heating degree days since July 1 total 3,748, 1,280 over normal. And for the year, heating degree days total 8,357, or 2,211 more than normal.

24-hour power restored

Area men refurbish Atlanta hydro plant

By KENNETH A. BROWN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The historic mining company of Atlanta once again has around-the-clock electrical power.

In October Lynn Stevenson of Bliss and Lee Barron of Fairfield completed refurbishing the small hydropower power plant which had historically provided the town with power. Last month they applied for a permit from the Idaho Public Utilities Commission to sell power to the town.

The original hydropower plant burned down in June of 1983, Stevenson said. The plant owners replaced the burned plant with a diesel generator that provided the town with power for only eight hours a day.

Stevenson, who also operates some small hydropower plants near the Snake River, said the plant had been for sale for several years before he and his partners took it over. While there was no local buyer interested in taking over the plant, Stevenson said community support has been "unique" for their efforts to rebuild the plant.

With 53 customers, the Atlanta Power Company is probably the smallest in the state, he added. According to the company's petition

After being scraped off the intersection of Locust Street and Fourth Avenue East, an ice pile waits to be carted away

Street ice move is on

By MICHAEL VANAUSDELN
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — With afternoon temperatures now staying above freezing, the Twin Falls Street Department has been removing ice off some streets in an attempt to ease traveling conditions in the city.

The department began work early this week in areas that seem particularly dangerous to motorists, such as Locust Street and 4th Avenue South.

"We've been digging it (the ice) out with a bucket-teeth loader," said Street Superintendent Bob Hildreth, "and it's been tough."

The city will continue to remove ice until the most icy streets are cleaned up and the weather improves. "We'll keep working until a thaw," Hildreth said.

Hildreth pointed out that this was the first year that the city has been removing ice in quite awhile.

"It's been at least three years since the last time we've done it," he said. "With the cold this year, we've had to clean up."

Hildreth said the length of the cold season has made this year a particular problem.

"Usually, a thaw occurs that helps," he said, "or if you have water under the ice, then it's much easier to break it up."

Lost soil reducing reservoirs

Official warns panel of erosion dangers

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

BOISE — Soil conservation may be a difficult concept to get legislators excited about, but Lester Clemm of the Idaho Soil Conservation Commission told members of the House Agricultural Affairs Committee Friday that lost soil washed downstream has reduced the capacity of Idaho reservoirs and rivers.

That decrease has cost millions in dredging costs and may mean losses in hydroelectric power generating capacity, he said.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has found losses of up to 40 percent in reservoirs around the state, said Clemm.

Soil erosion has already forced the temporary closing of the Port of Clarkston because silt made it impossible for grain-carrying barges to pass, he told the committee.

Clemm said after the meeting that he was not seeking passage of any new legislation, just a

Council approves funding for sewage plant capacity study

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council has agreed to pay CH2M Hill $15,800 for a study of capacity at the city wastewater treatment plant and for suggestions on how to increase capacity at little cost.

After CH2M Hill completes the work commissioned so far, the council will decide whether to pay the firm an additional $7,800 for further study and suggestions for ways to boost capacity that would require more substantial and costly changes at the plant.

City officials know that the plant will be at 94 percent of the design capacity when Idaho Frozen Foods begins piping its waste to the city facility this month.

The question CH2M Hill will answer is how close designers' estimates of capacity in 1970 are to the actual operating capacity today.

Engineers who designed the plant said it could treat 25,800 pounds a day of suspended solids and still meet effluent requirements.

"That's assumed," said Bob Farmer of CH2M Hill in Boise. "With modifications and changes, that could be over- or underestimated."

Since 1970, the plant has undergone several changes to make up for design defects of the original plan.

In the phase of the project approved by the council, CH2M Hill will evaluate the plant's ability to handle influent, biochemical oxygen demand, and total suspended solids while meeting discharge levels set by the federal government.

This phase of the study should show which of the treatment processes limit, or "bottleneck," the overall capacity of the plant, company officials say. It may also suggest ways that capacity could be expanded at little cost.

If the study does not turn up much additional capacity, the council may consider commissioning the remainder of the study to show where more substantial changes may be made.

CH2M Hill officials are stressing the city's need for a long-term plan for its sewage treatment system that would make sure the city has enough residential capacity to take care of city growth in the next decade and have some capacity set aside for industry.

City Council members agreed this week that the city needs to know what sewage treatment capacity is and how much would be available to a company considering locating in Twin Falls.

"The time to do it is not when Stouffer's is knocking at the door," City Manager Tom Courtney said.

The council chose CH2M Hill — the parent company of the firm now operating the city plant — to conduct the study, on Courtney's advice. CH2M Hill and Montgomery Engineering are the only two firms with the staff, resources and experience in Idaho to do the study easily, he said.

Montgomery Engineers did some of the design work on the plant and might be defensive about their design, he said. He recommended getting a fresh viewpoint from CH2M Hill.

The city is required to notify the federal Environmental Protection Agency when the sewage treatment plant reaches 85 percent of capacity, Courtney said. Consequently, when IFF begins using the city plant, the EPA is likely to require that the city either limit new hookups or take steps to expand capacity.

CSI offers astronomy for novices

TWIN FALLS — This will be a big year for astronomers or people taking an interest in astronomy, according to Bill Mason, who will teach "Astronomy for Beginners," a non-credit class through the College of Southern Idaho's Continuing Education Department.

Mason points to the observation of Halley's Comet, launching of the space telescope, the Uranus encounter by Voyager II, and the launching of the Galileo mission to Jupiter.

Class topics will also include the structure of the universe, motion of celestial bodies, the nature of light, telescopes and celestial navigation.

There will be plenty of hands-on experience with telescopes. Mason said anyone of high school age on up will benefit from the class. He said it would be especially helpful for someone who is considering buying a telescope.

Mason has given volunteer programs on astronomy in the community and at Herrett's Museum. He constructed the observatory southeast of Jerome some 10 years ago and is currently building the complementary planetarium there, which will be in operation early this summer.

Those interested in the class can get more information by calling 733-9554, ext. 363 and can register prior to the class beginning at the Taylor Administration Building.

There will be six sessions, beginning Jan. 28 and continuing from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesdays through March 4.

The class meets in Shields 105 and the fee is $48.

Worker injured by fumes from fire dies

SALT LAKE CITY — Garland Roman, the worker overcome by fumes from a smoldering fire at the Amalgamated Sugar Company's plant in Paul, died at LDS Hospital in Salt Lake at 8:05 p.m. Friday night, a hospital spokesperson said.

Earlier in the day, hospital staff had reported that Roman's condition was stable and that he had by smoke and carbon monoxide been removed from the intensive care unit.

Roman spent a week-and-a-half in critical condition after being injured in the New Year's Eve accident.

A spokesman for Amalgamated Sugar said Roman had entered a tunnel to inspect coal handling equipment when he was overcome fumes from a smoldering fire.

An inspector from the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration has been investigating the Dec. 31 industrial accident at the Paul Amalgamated Sugar Co. plant, Don Cavales of OSHA said Friday.

The investigation was continuing Friday and no information was yet available, he said.

Hearing set on herding plan

ELKO — The U.S. Bureau of Land Management's Elko District Office will hold a public hearing Jan. 14 on its use of helicopters to gather wild horses and burros during the coming year, according to District Manager Rodney Harris.

Helicopters have been routinely used for herding wild horses. The BLM is required by law to hold a hearing on this issue. In the past, however, no one has objected to helicopter use and it is generally considered efficient and humane, according to the BLM office in Elko.

The hearing will be held at the BLM office in Elko at 10 a.m. The office is located at 3900 E. Idaho St.

Farmers can air their views

BURLEY — E. Kika de la Garza, chairman of the U.S. House of Representatives Agriculture Committee, and U.S. Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, will hear farmers' views on agriculture on Wednesday in Burley.

"Chairman de la Garza has offered to come to Idaho and join me in hearing first-hand from Idaho agricultural interests just how they feel the 1985 farm bill will impact their operations," Stallings announced.

The meeting is scheduled to start at 2:30 p.m. at the Century Cinemas on Alfresco Road, off Overland Avenue near the Burley Mall, on the city's north side. It will adjourn at 5 p.m.

Tax forms available at library

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Public Library patrons can pick up the most frequently-used federal tax forms, Idaho state tax forms and brochures answering questions about income taxes now through the end of tax season at the library. There is no charge for the service.

The library will also have instructional cassettes on tax matters available for check-out.

However, the library can only provide tax materials, publicist Glenna Rhodes cautions. For tax assistance or advice, patrons will have to contact the Internal Revenue Service or a local tax assistance program.

Indigency

ment and genuine concern on the part of the commissioners in the state," he said.

The bill creating a state indigent program would abolish the catastrophic one.

Twin Falls County Commissioner Chairman Ann Cover said that, as it stands, she'd rather stay with the catastrophic program, because it's working fine.

Twin Falls County now pays about $251,000 annually to join the catastrophic program. Using the task force's figures, it would cost the county about $408,000 for the state program.

"I can't see that they are going to save us money," said Cover, who also is a member of the board of the catastrophic program. The participating counties in the program partly use sales tax revenue for their premiums, she added.

Yet the total county indigent budget this year is $699,000. That amount includes not only the catastrophic program payment, but funds to pay medical claims under $10,000 and for rent, prescriptions, funerals and other needs of the county poor.

Everett "Buck" Ward, a Lincoln County Commissioner, had a lot of questions about the state plan.

From what he has read, he is worried about whether the counties still would be responsible for other needs of indigents. Lincoln County, for instance, now pays about $250 a month for prescription medicine for those who can't afford to buy it on their own or are still lacking for money because Medicare won't pay the entire amount, he said.

The cost of a state-administered program probably would be higher than if the counties kept the job, he added. The state may not even do as good a job as the county commissioners and their welfare directors.

Fred Maier, a Minidoka County commissioner, and Cassia County Commission Chairman Weldon Beck said they hadn't heard about the proposal from the task force.

Maier said that Minidoka County does participate in the catastrophic program and the commissioners are satisfied.

Ward added that the excessive costs are the real problem when it comes to indigent medical bills. It doesn't matter if the state or counties process the paperwork, "Taxpayers still are going to pay them."

The Idaho Association of Counties hasn't taken a stand on the proposed bill, Executive Director Chuck Holden said Thursday.

with the IPUC, customers will be charged a flat fee of $30 per month and a $20-per-month energy charge. Commercial customers will be charged $100 per month and 6¢ per kilowatt hour.

After last month's record-setting cold temperatures and equally record-setting utility bills, the thought of a flat fee probably seems appealing to many Idaho residents.

For the town, power was, for practical purposes, unavailable except from its own power plant. Atlanta is 45 miles from the nearest Idaho Power line, Stevenson said.

The small hydropower plant is located on the Middle Fork of the Boise River. Kirby Dam, which holds back the water powering the plant, was built in 1906 and is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. The hydropower plant first began operation in 1907.

Stevenson said the site has the potential to produce 1 megawatt of energy. There is now a 250-kilowatt generator hooked up at the site and plans are in the works to install two more at the near future. One of those will be for increased capacity. The other will be to improve the small utility's reliability.

maintenance of the state funding for soil conservation administration. "If you neglect your natural resources, you become a victim of that neglect."

Rather than spending millions of dollars on dredging out the Snake River at the Port of Clarkston, government should spend money on soil conservation to prevent the soil from ever eroding in the first place, said Clemm.

In addition to silt buildup in Gem State reservoirs and rivers, Idaho's soil conservation districts will need firm state support due to new responsibilities passed on to them by the 1985 farm bill, Clemm said.

Clemm and Wayne R. Faude, administrative officer of the Idaho Soil Conservation Commission, said farmers will be required to develop conservation programs to be eligible for federal commodity programs.

Clemm said the local soil conservation boards will have to process all those program descriptions, and he expects that to be a difficult task.

BYU supporters launch P.R. blitz

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Supporters of Brigham Young University's Near Eastern Studies center have launched a letter-writing campaign and media blitz to sway Israeli public opinion in favor of the facility, university officials say.

"There are a lot of people in Israel who are against the idea of being told what they can and can't do," said Paul Richards, BYU spokesman. "They are tired of being told what they can do on Saturdays, what swimming pools they can swim in and what they can eat."

Richards said Israeli statesman Abba Eban, former U.S. President Gerald Ford, alumni of BYU Mideast Study Abroad and an Israeli group called the Movement Against Religious Coercion have written letters or demonstrated in support of the center.

The $15 million facility is under construction on Mount Scopus in Jerusalem.

"We're just a small fragment on the whole stage of what's going on over there," Richards said. "It's the whole issue of orthodoxism and what's going on in the rest of the country.

"Some people hategrate Arabs and Jews in the schools, so they can understand one another better, and the Orthodox (Jews) have tried to stop that," he said. "They are raising the whole question of who is a Jew and who can live in the country."

Recent death threats against David Galbraith, director of the BYU center in Jerusalem, also helped swing support in Israel to the university's side, he said.

"As a result of playing some of those threats over the radio in Israel, we've received a lot of letters in support of our position," Richards said. "We've had a lot of people calling and apologizing for the behavior of their countrymen."

Orthodox Jews contend that the center will be used as a base for proselytizing efforts by the university, which is owned by the LDS Church. However, university officials say they have no plans to convert Jews to their faith.

"We have given the government a formal, signed guarantee that this is a university facility and not a missionary center, as some of our opponents have erroneously suggested," said Jeffrey Holland, BYU president.

Richards said BYU officials now must wait for the results of a recently commissioned Knesset committee study of the matter.

"They have already said they have no legal way of stopping construction," Richards said. "I think once they review our written and verbal commitments, they will give us a clean bill of health."

Falwell subs for errant pastor

BANGOR, Maine (AP) — Moral Majority founder Jerry Falwell will take over next week as interim pastor of the Bangor Baptist Church, where a friend stepped down after publicly confessing that he committed adultery.

Falwell will deliver his first sermon as pastor at an evening service on Jan. 14 for the Rev. Herman C. "Buddy" Frankland.

An associate will oversee the day-to-day operations of the church, although Falwell will be going up from time to time," said Wendy Robinson, secretary to Falwell's public relations director, Duane Ward.

Falwell, who flew here last Friday for a meeting with Frankland and church deacons, cited "unusual circumstances in Bangor" as the reason he agreed to take over temporarily.

"Bangor's church has been one of the strongest in the New England area and it needs stability and help at this time," Falwell said in an interview Sunday.

Frankland, who mounted an unsuccessful independent candidacy for the Maine governorship in 1978 and has since been a leader of the state's Christian school movement, called a news conference in October to confess that he had committed adultery and that he planned to resign.

Originally he had said he would step down in mid-November. He stayed on past that date, however, and advised the congregation at a stormy meeting in December that he had changed his plans and intended to remain in the pulpit.

Frankland, who has refused to talk to reporters since the October news conference, told the News on Sunday that his church had lost about half of its 3,000 members as a result of the turmoil resulting from his disclosures. In November, about 100 of them started their own church and school.

Frankland's resignation took effect Sunday.

In a letter to all present and former church members, advising them of the change in pastors, Frankland said, "Thank God the four-month turmoil for the Bangor Baptist Church is finally over."

Falwell, who like Frankland attended Baptist Bible College in Springfield, Mo., and has appeared several times as a guest speaker at Bangor Baptist Church, said he hoped to win back former church members.

"I would not be interested at all in expending efforts (in Bangor) unless for the purpose of a complete healing" of the church, Falwell said. "Rev. Frankland has told me that he cannot be part of the church's future and I agree."

Jehovah's Witnesses gather for assembly

AMERICAN FALLS — On the weekend of Jan. 18-19 a two-day circuit assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses will be held in American Falls. The event will include an estimated 900 delegates from 11 southern Idaho congregations.

Stanley H. Mayor of Twin Falls, spokesman for the local congregation of the Witnesses said, "All in the congregation are anticipating encouraging and upbuilding information to be presented on the program. Our objective in life is to 'do all things for God's glory,' and this circuit assembly program will help us to see practical ways we can do that in this modern world we live in."

"Doing Our Part in Glorifying God" is the theme of the assembly, drawn from a Bible scripture at 1 Corinthians 10:31. The Saturday program highlights the need to keep strict watch on how we walk if we are to glorify God. On Sunday helpful suggestions on personal Bible reading are offered, and those in attendance will receive practical counsel on "Seeking God's Glory, Not Our Own."

The highlight of the convention will come Sunday, at 2 p.m., when the talk "Global Peace — From What Source?" will be delivered by Donald E. Mendenhall, Mendenhall is a representative of the Watchtower Bible & Tract Society in New York, where the Worldwide Headquarters of Jehovah's Witnesses is located.

Major said, "We want to extend a warm invitation to everyone in the southern Idaho area to attend all sessions of this two-day event. No collections will be taken, and the program will begin at 9:55 a.m. in the American Falls High School Gymnasium."

Worldwide numbers of Lutherans slide

GENEVA (AP) — The Lutheran World Federation, citing an "unfortunate calculation error," on Thursday revised upward by nearly 1 million its recently issued census of worldwide Lutheran church membership.

New figures show total membership declining by 48,325 in 1985, not by more than 1 million as listed in their federation's annual survey released Tuesday.

The earlier calculation omitted about 975,000 Lutherans in West Germany, said a federation statement. The new figures show West German membership declined by 192,050 in 1985.

According to the revised total, the world's Lutheran churches counted 68,444,845 members at the end of 1985, down from 68,493,170 in 1984.

Gains in African, Asian and Latin American membership failed to offset the loss of about 630,000 members in Europe, the statement said.

The federation counts all Lutherans, including those not affiliated with the federation.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan just how to make your ambitions come true, particularly in private life. Get tasks handled that can deter your progress.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get at those private matters that can give you the feeling of well being and that living is a wonderful adventure.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Early get into the outside world and handle important matters well. Some favor for a bigwig can bring added benefits to you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have some new plan which is fine but need more data to work out the details of it nicely.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) An enterprise that means much to you can be improved with the aid of one who has the right information.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't allow an outside problem to disturb the equanimity at home, but plan quietly just how to solve it.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make sure that your car is in good running order and that you drive carefully today. Recklessness could bring you much trouble.

IF YOUR CHILD WAS BORN TODAY — he or she will be very capable at whatever has to do with business or money. Give as fine a business course as you can and send to the best schools. Your progeny will be very magnetic but teach to use this quality in the right way.

U.S. pot value goes higher

WASHINGTON (AP) — The value of U.S.-grown marijuana rose 12 percent last year to $18.6 billion in the face of the Reagan administration's highly-publicized eradication campaign, the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws said Friday.

NORML, which advocates legalization of marijuana, said pot edged out corn by $17.5 million as the nation's No. 1 cash crop, but the latest Agriculture Department estimates set the value of the 1985 corn harvest at a minimum of $20.49 billion.

NORML's report was disputed by the Drug Enforcement Administration, which last year intensified its anti-pot efforts.

Tutu warns of 'explosion'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bishop Desmond Tutu said Friday that South Africa is ripe for explosion unless the white government gives blacks political power, but held out hope that economic pressures may yet bring a peaceful solution.

The Anglican prelate also reiterated speculation — under pressure from a reporter — that there could come a time when the white government resorted to nuclear weapons to destroy the country.

Asked if he thought whites might ever use nuclear arms within the country, Tutu said, "Yes," and provided the following scenario:

"If those within the government who are the hardliners, the hawks believe they have had it, is just possible, just possible that they will say, "If we can't have it, then no one can have it."

No cuts in military personnel

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan told Congress Friday the Pentagon will slash its operations, weapons-buying and research accounts rather than reduce personnel spending to comply with a new balanced-budget law.

The president's decision was disclosed by White House spokesman Larry Speakes, and Pentagon sources subsequently agreed to elaborate on condition they not be identified by name.

Edwin Dale, a spokesman for the Office of Management and Budget, said Reagan had exercised a special grant of flexibility that applies only to the current year's budget by deciding to protect $63.1 billion of the $67.9 billion authorized by Congress for military personnel.

Reagan will visit Grenada

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will fly to Grenada next month to confer with Caribbean leaders and honor the 19 American servicemen killed when U.S. forces stormed the small island and ousted its Marxist government 27 months ago, it was announced Friday.

During the four-hour visit on Feb. 20, the president also will address citizens at Queen's Park in downtown St. George's, the capital, and visit the campus of the island medical school, where a 6-foot-high bronze monument was unveiled last year in tribute to the fallen servicemen.

The U.S.-led invasion Oct. 25, 1983, and removal of the Marxist regime are viewed in the administration as Reagan's top foreign policy achievement.

The trip marks Reagan's second journey to the Caribbean during his administration. He also met with regional leaders in April, 1982, on the island of Barbados.

Judge remains on belt cases

ROCKFORD, Mich. (AP) — A judge who refuses to fine people who violate Michigan's mandatory seat belt law rejected a prosecutor's request that he disqualify himself from seat belt cases Friday.

"I'm fining (violators) for what I think I should fine them, and that's nothing," said Kent County District Judge Steven Servaas, who has called the law an infringement on individual rights.

Kent County Prosecutor David Sawyer, who filed the motion asking the judge to disqualify himself, argued that Servaas' opposition to the law "indicates a personal bias and prejudice" that makes him incapable of ruling on seat belt cases.

Nation

Trade progress cited

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Friday there has been substantial success in opening some Japanese markets to American goods, but that reducing the $50 billion U.S. trade deficit with Japan will require shifts in economic currents little affected by negotiation.

After a meeting with Japanese Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe, Shultz told reporters that a months-long process of negotiation has led to increased penetration of telecommunications, medical equipment and pharmaceuticals, electronics and forest products.

The negotiations are aimed at reducing tariffs and technical restrictions that make it difficult for U.S. companies to do business in Japan.

Troops may attempt rescue

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — The government said Friday it may send troops to rescue 245 policemen whose camp in the heart of the cocaine country has been surrounded by thousands of coca farmers angered by government plans to cut their production.

Interior Minister Fernando Barthelemy also said growing fewer of the coca leaves from which the drug is produced could have serious results for the shattered Bolivian economy, which has become dependent on the illegal cocaine trade.

Solo adventurer found dead

CAMPBELL RIVER, British Columbia (AP) — A Washington state man who tried to live off the land while on a solo kayak trip to Alaska apparently died of starvation an hour from a logging camp, authorities said.

The body of George Russell Mincy, 41, of Camano Island, Wash., was found Jan. 4 in a small cabin at Horn Bay north of this Vancouver Island city.

"It appears death was due to starvation, malnutrition," coroner John Mooney said Thursday.

Marcos vows election is on

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos promised Friday to go ahead with the Feb. 7 presidential election "unless a miracle happens" and Communist guerrillas carry their warfare to the streets of the cities.

Meanwhile, opposition candidate Corazon Aquino attracted the largest crowds of the campaign while touring a northern province. Thousands of Filipinos displayed yellow curtains, clothing and yellow papaya fruit to show their support for her campaign, which has adopted yellow as its rallying color.

Delegation leaves S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A U.S. congressional delegation ended a four-day visit Friday, accused by officials of interfering, rejected by some key black leaders and skeptical that the white-led government intends to "dismantle apartheid."

Black activist Winnie Mandela and leaders of a black consciousness movement would not see the Americans, and the government banned a visit to Mrs. Mandela's husband, jailed guerrilla leader Nelson Mandela.

Rep. Lynn Martin, R-Ill., said before their U.S. Air Force jet left that the delegation had asked to see Mrs. Mandela but received no reply. Sources close to the group said Mrs. Mandela's lawyers had tried to talk her into a meeting.

Mrs. Mandela is known to be bitter about what militant blacks see as Washington's soft line toward the white government. She is under an expulsion order from her home in Johannesburg's Soweto township and has been staying at a secret address outside the city limits.

The Swiss intermediary in South Africa's foriegn debt crisis, Fritz Leutwiler, arrived for talks crucial to this country's ailing economy.

Leutwiler, who conferred with Foreign Minister R.F. Botha on Friday and was due to see President P.W. Botha over the weekend, said he hoped he could work out a "realistic, constructive" proposal for rescheduling South Africa's estimated $24-billion debt.

Earlier, the Azanian People's Organization, which rejects any role for whites in South Africa, refused to see the Americans, accusing them of being "imperialists and capitalists." It organized protests during a visit last year by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Police said three black women were burned to death during anti-apartheid rioting in Queenstown, Cape Province.

In Lenasia, a township of ethnic Indians near Johannesburg, police fired tear gas Friday night to disperse several hundred parents and students who turned out for a meeting about school boycotts.

Warning given on arms debt

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The United States must move quickly to relieve the burden of military debt amassed by Egypt and other Third World countries — buying expensive American arms, retiring U.S. Ambassador Nicholas Veliotes said Friday.

Veliotes told a news conference the lack of progress on the problem in Egypt is "one of the major concerns" he will leave behind when he retires in April to become president of the Association of American Publishers.

Baby enters world aboard DC-10 jet

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — A Nigerian woman gave birth Friday aboard an Iberia Airlines DC-10 bound for Madrid, a spokesman for the national airline said.

The spokesman said Estela Ogbinna and her son were resting comfortably in a Barcelona hospital.

Dr. Michael Gody of Belgium, a passenger on the jet, provided aid to the woman after the captain of the airliner asked for a doctor, the spokesman said.

Heavy fog closed the Madrid airport Friday and forced the airliner to land in Barcelona.

Big Sky's 5-year plan sparks NCAA interest

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Big Sky Conference may be just a dot on the college sports map, but it has brought an idea to the NCAA convention that has all the big schools buzzing.

"I think it could turn out to be the sleeper of the whole convention," said Jack Davis, president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The Big Sky proposes to give all athletes five years of eligibility instead of the four that has been the limit since the 1940s.

Initial backers of the measure say it would improve graduation rates. Others, particularly because of changes expected to result from tougher academic requirements, foresee other long-range economic benefits as well.

"Our belief is that many student-athletes lose interest in school and lose purpose or direction once their eligibility expires," said Gene Bleymaier, athletic director at Big Sky member Boise State. "... Many student-athletes still leave school because of the change in lifestyle and loss of being part of a team."

The measure will probably come up for a vote Tuesday afternoon.

"If you think about it, there are great ramifications to it," Davis said. "It's possible that we could reduce the number of initial grants (scholarships) in football from 30 to 25 because students are going to be there a year longer."

"On the other side of the coin, it could mean less opportunity for students to go into some sports. Detractors claim that would be true because some of your better students who get a degree in four years might retain a year of eligibility to work on a graduate degree."

Reducing the attrition rate could soon put an uncomfortable squeeze on many big-time football schools. They now give as many as 30 scholarships each year but can have no more than 95 players on scholarship altogether.

"With more and more players staying in school ... bringing in 30 each year for five years would mean 150 people, and if you've got to bring it down, among some pretty good students, there could be a problem," Davis said.

"It sure isn't going to cost any more because in most sports those students who have exhausted their eligibility but don't have their degree yet are still kept on for a fifth year," Davis said. "I think most institutions feel a moral obligation to do that. More than likely, it could reduce costs, especially in football, say from 30 to 25 initial grants."

An official of the College Football Association said the Big Sky's idea has sparked a lot of talk.

"The CFA does not have an official position on it as such. There is quite a bit of disagreement," said Charles M. Neinas, CFA's executive director. "But it's something that people are taking a close look at."

Nobody at this point is giving the measure much better than a 50-50 shot at passage.

"Usually, things that are this revolutionary in nature take two or three conventions before they get passed," Neinas said.

This is going to be an interesting one on the floor because we'll see arguments on all sides of the issue," Davis said. "And it may be that there are too many arguments and too many details for it to pass at this time. But it's one of those things that is going to come back. People may be ready for it later on."

Golden Eagles drop Utah Tech for 12th straight win

PROVO, Utah — Smothering defense and 10-point spurts in the late first and early second halves carried undefeated College of Southern Idaho over a major hurdle Friday night.

The Eagles, running their record to 12-0, toppled Utah Tech 92-72 behind the flurry scoring of Greg Boyd and Jeff Rekeweg.

But the major difference in the anticipated duel was the CSI defense which slowly choked Utah Tech's offense to death. The Wolverines made the best first-half showing of the season against CSI by scoring 42 points — but 30 of those came in a torrid first 13 minutes.

The Eagles dropped the curtain on Utah Tech's hopes for the upset by limiting the Wolverines to 10 points in the first nine minutes of the second half while running in 19 of their own.

Those expecting a replay of last Saturday night when CSI's Chris Blocker and Tech's Alan Andrus shared honors with 30 apiece didn't get it. Andrus, fouling out early in the second half, ended up with six while Blocker had 10 — but another double handful of assists.

The scoring string was picked up by Boyd, the team's second top gun, who canned 15 in the first half and two quick bombs to open the second, and then Rekeweg, who had 13 of his 19 points in the second half.

"It was hard fought — it came an inch at a time," said Coach Fred Trenkle.

"I think this definitely was a team win. Boyd had a great night, Eric Newman had foul trouble but still hit the boards. Blocker had a ton of assists. (Mike) Miller, (Gerald) Collins and (Keith) Jackson came in and played solid defense for us and helped the offense by hitting the open shot. But I thought Miller and (Phil) Olson made the big difference tonight. They came in and guarded the bigger guys inside, helped run the offense and got points."

Because Boyd opened the game with 10 of CSI's first 14 points, the Eagles managed to get out to seven at eight-point leads. That started changing at 26-18 with 10:54 left in the half when Willy Ferguson and Shawn Kinnear pulled Utah Tech back to within three.

In a surprise, both teams wound up with 29 field goals but CSI, making its best four-shooting appearance of the season, canned 34 of 42 while Utah Tech was limited to 14 of 22.

For six minutes CSI managed just one field goal — but picked up nine free throws to stay just ahead. Then at the three-minute mark, daylight started opening up.

Joey Johnson and Boyd collected field goals, Jackson added another and Miller came up with a three-point play off a steal to suddenly move the Eagles ahead 50-38.

The teams traded six points each to open the second half before the Eagles went on the decisive surge. Boyd started that with a transition bucket and Collins came up with four quick points. Johnson added a free throw before Ferguson hit for the Wolverines. Rekeweg and Boyd wound it up with two CSI points apiece that made it 69-50.

CSI's biggest lead came at 82-57 when Newman got inside for a bucket and the Eagles held that twice more before the teams coasted in.

CSI returns to Twin Falls Monday night to entertain Colorado Northwestern, which is enjoying its best start in several years with a 10-4 record and has beaten a couple of the Utah junior colleges. CSI remains home to entertain Flathead Community College of Kallspel, Mont., next Friday.

Clips end five-game drought

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Marques Johnson scored 10 of his 29 points in the fourth quarter Friday as the Los Angeles Clippers snapped a five-game losing streak with a 125-120 National Basketball Association victory over the New Jersey Nets.

The Clippers broke a 96-96 tie early in the fourth period with a spurt of seven straight points, four by Franklin Edwards and three by Junior Bridgeman, to take the lead for good.

New Jersey rallied to within 107-105 with 3:41 to play on a free throw by Darwin Cook, but Johnson scored on a baseline jumper and then added a layup, giving the Clippers a 111-105 advantage.

Sixers 113, Kings 102

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Moses Malone scored 26 points and pulled down 17 rebounds, and Charles Barkley added 21 points as the Philadelphia 76ers defeated Sacramento 113-102 Friday night, snapping the Kings' four-game winning streak. The victory was the 11th in 12 games for the 76ers.

Philadelphia trailed 77-75 with 2:16 left in the third quarter, but the Sixers scored the final six points of the period, then went on a 10-2 run at the start of the fourth quarter to take a 91-79 lead on a layup by Malone with 9:15 to play.

Celtics 115, Hawks 108

BOSTON (AP) — Larry Bird scored 29 points, and Dennis Johnson and Kevin McHale had 24 each Friday night as the Boston Celtics snapped Atlanta's five-game winning streak with a 115-108 National Basketball Association victory over the Hawks.

The Celtics built a 21-point lead late in the third period, then easily withstood an Atlanta charge in the final quarter in improving their home record to 16-1.

The Hawks, led as usual by Dominique Wilkins, shocked the Celtics by opening a seven-point lead, 29-22, before settling for a 34-30 advantage at the end of one period. Wilkins had 12 points, while Bird was a one-man gang for Boston.

Mavericks 117, Suns 104

DALLAS (AP) — Rolando Blackman scored nine of his 25 points in the fourth quarter as the Dallas Mavericks saw a 23-point lead dwindle to seven before pulling away from the Phoenix Suns for a 117-104 National Basketball Association victory Friday night.

The Suns, who trailed 93-70 in the third quarter, had pulled to 99-92 when Dallas guard Derek Harper swiped the ball from Rick Robey and dribbled the length of the court for a layup. Blackman added a free throw after Robey was assessed a technical foul, and the Suns got no closer than eight points the rest of the way.

Spurs 124, Warriors 97

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Forward Steve Johnson scored 21 points to lead the San Antonio Spurs to a 124-97 victory over the Golden State Warriors Friday night in a National Basketball Association game.

The Spurs had six other players in double figures, including Mike Mitchell with 17 points, rookie Alfredrick Hughes with 16 and David Greenwood and Alvin Robertson with 14 apiece.

Bucks 95, Blazers 89

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Guard Mike Glenn, in only his fifth game with Milwaukee, came off the bench to score six points in the final four minutes, lifting the Bucks to a 95-89 National Basketball Association victory Friday night over the Portland Trail Blazers.

Glenn, who joined the Bucks Jan. 1 to replace the injured Craig Hodges, helped Milwaukee to its sixth straight victory at home. Ricky Pierce led Milwaukee with 21 points, while Clyde Drexler paced Portland with 26 points.

Gooding overpowers Valley

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

GOODING — For the Gooding Senators Friday night, it was business as usual.

Eleven Senators scored as Gooding stomped Valley 78-42 in Canyon Conference boys basketball action.

Gooding used the height advantage early in the game starting Brian Darcy, Swen Swenson and Todd Kimmes. Darcy and Swenson stand about 6-9 while Kimmes was the smallest on the front line at 6-4.

Valley's tallest player was 6-3 and the Senators took full adantage racking up an early 6-0 lead.

After Valley scored their first bucket of the evening, Gooding roared out to a 15-2 advantage.

"I think the height had us intimidated," said Viking Coach Ron Cline.

For Gooding Coach Lou Anderson, it was a chance for him to see the tall players play together for the first time this season.

Todd Simis scored eight points in the first quarter as the Senators posted a 23-7 lead.

In the second quarter, it was more of the same high-scoring punch of the Senators.

Halfway through the quarter Gooding had built up a 29 point lead before Valley managed to score.

In the opening minutes of the second half, the Vikings managed to outscore Gooding 8-4 with two baskets apiece by Billy Hardy and Gregg Blacker.

In the closing 40 seconds of the quarter, Todd Simmis, who led Gooding with 14 points, scored a pair of buckets and Dean Metzger fired in a three-point basket and Gooding led 60-26.

Metzger opened up the scoring in the fourth quarter increasing the lead to 38 points and the Senators cruised to the win.

"I don't know how to beat those guys. I guess you build stilts and stand on top of them," said Cline. "For us to win, Hardy and (Curt) Crumrine have to click and they didn't in the first half."

Metzger and William Novis added 11 points apiece for the winners.

Hardy had 17 points for Valley.

Gooding won the preliminary contest 54-36.

Weber topples Vandals 80-74

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Junior forward Curtis Webster scored 23 points and pulled down 11 rebounds to lead the Weber State Wildcats to an 80-74 basketball victory over the University of Idaho in the Big Sky Conference opener for both teams Friday night.

Weber took an 11 point lead, 39-28, into intermission, as the Wildcats hit on five of six three-point plays in the half.

The Idaho press brought the Vandals to within five points, 54-49, after they reeled off 10 unanswered points with 8:33 remaining.

Weber State then slowed down the game, and, despite the Vandals hitting on two three-point plays in the last few minutes, was able to hold on for the six-point final margin.

Walt Tyler had 16 for the Wildcats.

Leading Idaho were Ken Luckett and Tom Stalick with 20 points each.

Weber State is now 10-2 on the season. The Vandals fell to 6-7.

Idaho State turns to defense to handle Boise State 72-49

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

POCATELLO — First year Idaho State University Coach Jim Boutin spent most of his coaching career a few miles down the road from Corvallis, Ore., where one Ralph Miller is in the same business.

Boutin shares the Oregon State coach's liking for defense. And one more thing.

"It's called a 32 offense and it really only consists of one or two plays," said Boutin after his Bengals had embarrassed Boise State 72-49 here Friday night in the Big Sky Conference opener for both teams.

"It's based on a real simple idea — teams that play pressure defense are vulnerable to back-door plays. We used it some tonight, but I told the players there may be times we use it all game long."

The 32 offense turned Boise State inside out. The Bengals only rarely had to shoot from beyond 12 feet and they connected on a blistering 67 percent of their field goal tries for the evening. ISU junior forward Donn Holston scored 27 points, hitting 12 or 14 shots from the floor. Seven of those buckets were either lay-ins, dunks or offensive put-backs.

"I'm just perplexed about how poorly we played tonight," said a somber Boise State Coach Bobby Dye. "They played extremely well, but we were never in the game. I'm just hoping we can snap out of it and get a win tomorrow at Weber (State)."

So thorough was the Bengals' domination that Boutin took a couple of timeouts with his team leading by 20 to berate the Bengals for being lackadaisical.

"We want to prove to people that this was no fluke," said Boutin, whose ballclub was picked to finish last in the Big Sky this season and is on NCAA probation. "We wanted to show that we're capable of performing well against a good team, and Boise State is a good team. I know Bobby Dye is feeling a little frustrated right now, but he has some fine athletes and they'll beat some good teams."

Holston, who sat down midway through the first half with the Bengals leading by 14, credited the Bengals' improved defense for Idaho State's torrid shooting Friday night.

"We played really aggressive defense, and that really set the pace for the game," he said. "We took control of the game defensively and we played good offense. The two go together."

In truth, Idaho State — the Big Sky leader in team defense — didn't have to play great defense Friday. The Broncos never got into their offense, ending the game with two assists.

"We just don't have the talent physically to play that way (one-on-one)," said Dye. "We have to play as a team, and we didn't do that."

Idaho State shot 83 percent in the first half, missing just four field goal attempts before intermission. The Bengals went up 8-1 with 15:17 remaining in the half and led 18-7 when College of Southern Idaho alum Phil Rohr popped in a 14-foot jumper midway through the first half. By intermission, it was 39-16 Idaho State.

The Broncos mounted a bit of surge after halftime, twice cutting the deficit to 14 points by controlling the offensive boards. But there was no shutting the Bengals off at the other end of the floor, where they hit 53 percent after intermission.

Rohr, a senior guard, scored 18 points in his 33 minutes on the court, hitting 8-for-13 from the field. Junior center Dave Danforth had 12 points while freshman point guard Chris Childs led the Broncos with 11 before Dye pulled him from the game early in the second half.

The win improved Idaho State's season record to 8-8 pending tonight's conference game against Idaho in the Minidome. BSU is now 5-8 for the year.

Castleford nips Murtaugh in overtime

Girls basketball

MURTAUGH — Benefitting from two free points after a snafu on the overtime session upon, the Castleford girls outlast Murtaugh 42-41 Friday night.

The centers faced the wrong baskets to open the overtime with Murtaugh taking the tip and driving immediately for the layup the wrong way. Although the Devils managed to tie it, they never recovered.

Still, with nine seconds left, the Red Devils had a pair of free throws to win it — but missed them. Castleford knocked the rebound out of bounds, giving the Devils a final desperation chance with one second remaining. That, too, bounced away.

The scored was tied after the first three quarters, but Hettie DeJong took over.

DeJong scored 12 of the Bobcats' 18 fourth quarter points in the victory.

"It seemed like everything we threw up in the fourth quarter went in," said Bobcat Coach Gordon Kerbs.

Sophomore Laurie Barnes added 12 for Burley.

The Bobcats won the preliminary game 51-29.

Utah Tech women drop CSI 87-44

PROVO, Utah — Utah Tech left no doubt in College of Southern Idaho's mind why it is ranked No. 3 nationally among junior college women basketball teams Friday night.

The Wolverines, putting 10 players in the scoring column, beat the Golden Eagles 87-44.

"We took spurts where we played pretty well but they were just too tall, too mature and too deep for us," said CSI Coach Lloyd Hardesty. "I really think, barring injury, they're going to make a real splash at nationals this spring."

Utah Tech has things pretty well tucked away with a 44-23 halftime lead and the action was just about the same after intermission.

"I felt Gaylen Woods played well and Janie Anicho had a fine night defensively," Hardesty said. "I think we'll make a better showing against them at our place (Feb. 18)."

Peete increases golf lead with torrid 64

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Calvin Peete reeled off a string of four consecutive birdies on the way to a spectacular 64 that gave him three-stroke control Friday in the third round of the $500,000 MONY Tournament of Champions.

Peete's 8-under-par effort in bright, warm, sunny weather, matched the record on the La Costa Country Club course and gave Peete a 54-hole total of 199.

That is 17 under par for three rounds and moved him within range of the 72-hole record for this elite event, which brings together only the winners of Professional Golfers Association Tour titles from the last 12 months. The record since the tournament has been played here is 273, 15 under par, and Peete would need only a score of 74 in Saturday's final round to tie it.

"I expect to be the best I've ever putted," said Peete, who has a reputation as golf's most accurate striker of the ball but whose putting has been suspect.

On Friday, he one-putted 11 times, did not make a bogey and did not have a 5 on his card.

Mark O'Meara, who entered the day's play in a tie for the lead, shot a solid 5-under-par 67, yet lost three shots to Peete. He was second alone at 202.

Scott Verplank, 21, the first amateur to play in this 34-year-old tournament, moved up to take sole possession of third place with a 68 and a 207 total.

Tom Kite, the defending champion who was tied with Peete and O'Meara for the second-round lead, slipped to a 73 that dropped him nine shots off the pace. Kite went through 46 holes without a bogey, then dropped strokes on the next two holes.

Kite was tied at 208 with Danny Edwards and Phil Blackmar. Edwards had a 69 and Blackmar closed with a 66.

Oakley downs Pirates on late surge

HAGERMAN — A 19-point second quarter effort by Oakley made up for a lackluster first period, as the Hornets downed Hagerman 52-46 Friday night in Magic Valley Conference action.

What started off well degenerated into a miserable first quarter for both teams. Hagerman's offensive game plan was simple: a Troy Olney-to-Darrin Pharis lob. It worked twice to make it 4-0, Hagerman.

But Oakley soon sandwiched Pharis between center John Oldham and forward Joel Eiquist, completely shutting off the Pirates' tallest player. Oakley's Russon Hale, substituting for brother Jason Hale, hit a short bucket with two minutes in the period but neither club could consistently find the basket. The end result was a 6-6 first period.

The saving grace for the Hornets was in the second quarter. After dealing with the Pharis factor and despite shooting 32 per cent from the field, Oakley managed to reel off seven unanswered points to make it 23-14. Russon Hale ended the half with a 10-footer and the visitors went ahead by nine.

In the third, Oakley made three steals in the first 49 seconds, an indication of how events were to turn out in the final frame. Bryan Jenks connected on a baseline set shot to make it 38-25, Oakley's biggest lead, but Oldham finished the period with a short pickup shot to make it 40-30.

Hagerman whittled into Oakley's lead late in the game, cutting it to three with a Troy Olney free throw. With 29 seconds left, the ensuing rebound of Olney's second shot went to the Pirates, but Jenks made yet another steal, forcing opponent Mark Elliott to foul Jenks on the cripple.

Both teams ended up with identical 4-4 overall and 2-2 league marks.

Inflation rate lowest since '65

By TOM RAUM
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Prices at the wholesale level inched up a modest 1.8 percent in 1985, producing the lowest three-year inflation rate in two decades, the government said Friday.

Economists said the year-end figures point to another year of relatively low inflation for 1986. Wholesale prices rose 0.[illegible] in 1983 and 1.7 percent in 1984.

The Labor Department said wholesale prices rose only 0.4 percent in December, moderating from the 0.8 percent increase of the month before. Analysts credited the lower December rate to a slowing in food and energy price increases.

Food prices rose 0.3 percent for the year, after a 3.5 percent rise in 1984, while energy prices generally showed no annual change.

A large part of the year's food price increase was an overall 12.3 percent boost in the cost of vegetables and a surge in beef prices in the fall that has since ended. Food prices actually fell six months out of the year.

Beef prices, which had climbed 11.8 percent in October and 4.5 percent in November, fell 0.7 percent in December.

For December alone, overall food prices were up 0.8 percent, following a 1.6 percent jump in November.

Gasoline prices were up 3 percent for the year. For December, the increase was 2.8 percent, compared to a 3.7 percent increase in November.

Analysts said they anticipate that falling crude oil prices — resulting from the chaotic meeting last month of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries — will show up in significantly lower gasoline and other fuel costs in the months to come.

Labor Department economist Craig Howells said the slight increase in gasoline prices posted in December — a month when these prices typically declined — occurred because refiners were using up their inventories and holding off on new crude oil purchases in anticipation of much lower prices.

This led to spot shortages and spot increases, Howells said.

Crude oil prices themselves fell 4 percent for all of 1985.

The Labor Department offered these specifics on December wholesale price activity:

• Fish prices increased 1.9 percent, poultry prices dropped 0.5 percent and pork prices dropped 1.1 percent.

• Coffee prices rose 3.3 percent, largely because of a Brazilian drought. Bakery products increased 0.4 percent, alcoholic beverages stayed the same and soft drink prices dropped 0.5 percent.

• Prices for women's apparel increased 0.8 percent, while men and boy's clothes went up only 0.3 percent. Girl's and infant's apparel rose 1.3 percent.

• Natural gas prices dropped 1.7 percent, the third straight monthly decline. Fuel oil prices rose 1.5 percent.

Inflation at the retail level increased at an annual rate of 3.6 percent through the first 11 months of 1985, compared to a 4 percent increase for all of 1984.

The overall Producer Price Index for finished goods stood at 297.2 in December, meaning that goods costing $10 in 1967 would have cost $29.72 last month.

Department analysts noted that, if the effects of food and energy prices were removed from the overall calculation, wholesale prices would have held steady for December, with declines in the costs of cars and prescription drugs offsetting gains in prices for clothing, tobacco, cosmetics, costume jewelry and light trucks.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes called the wholesale price report "a remarkable record of low inflation."

Private economists generally agreed that the report points toward continued low inflation, with 1986 producer prices creeping up just a tad more than they did through 1985.

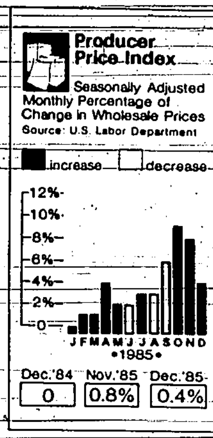
"The tormoil that exists in the world market for crude oil and all the weakensses that it is beginning to show will ultimately impact on domestic prices, bringing them down," said Frantz Price, an economist for Chase Econometrics, a Bala Cynwyd, Pa., forecasting firm.

He said the declining dollar on international markets has not yet made much of an impact on U.S. wholesale prices, judging from the December figures.

"In 1986, we may see limited acceleration in inflation but nothing to worry about," said Price. "The decline in the dollar will have an impact, but not a major one."

Michael Evans, who runs his own economic forecasting service in Washington, D.C., also said there is no indication that a continued slide in the value of the dollar — which would generally help make U.S. products more competitive abroad — is going to result in dramatically higher prices here for imports.

"The dollar might add a half a percent to inflation next year, but that's an outside estimate. I don't think it will be that high," Evans said.



Utility thinks PUC is arena for suit issues

BOISE (AP) — Idaho Power Co. says the Public Utilities Commission should handle the issues raised in a $350-million lawsuit filed against the utility by a Wyoming power generator.

Afton Energy, Inc., which generates power at a plant near Afton, Wyo., filed the 4th District Court lawsuit here this week.

It alleges Idaho Power has breached a 1982 contract to buy power from Afton Energy, and has unfairly conspired to drive Afton out of business, ruining a $58 million investment.

A company spokesman said Friday the company feels the issues involved were considered for many months by the Idaho PUC, and that panel should make any changes necessary in the 1982 contract.

Judge prohibits seizure of Texaco

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — A federal judge Friday extended his order restraining Pennzoil Co. from seizing assets of Texaco Inc.

He also ruled that Texaco should not have to put more than $1 billion in security while it appeals an $11.1 billion damage judgment won by Pennzoil.

Under state law in Texas, where Pennzoil won its damage case in November, Texaco would have been required to post a $12 billion bond to appeal the verdict, an amount that Texaco, the nation's third-largest oil company, had said could drive it into bankruptcy.

U.S. District Judge Charles Brieant said Pennzoil should not have been awarded any more than $800 million in damages, plus interest and costs, in the Texas suit.

The case arose out of Texaco's acquisition of Getty Oil Co., which previously had agreed to a merger deal with Houston-based Pennzoil.

If Texaco succeeded, it would be able to pursue its appeal in state and federal courts without having to post a $12 billion bond. It had said that the cloud cast by the case over control of those assets during a prolonged appeal had made it difficult to borrow money because of fears in financial markets of impending insolvency.

After a 4½-month trial, a Houston jury ruled Nov. 19 that Texaco wrongfully interfered in a merger agreement between Pennzoil and Getty Oil Co. when it acquired Getty two years ago. The jury awarded Pennzoil $7.53 billion in actual damages and an additional $3 billion in punitive damages.

Dow sustains 3rd loss in row; blue chips sell

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined slightly Friday, still feeling some of the aftershocks of its selloff earlier in the week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, down 47.48 points Wednesday and Thursday, dropped another 4.70 to 1,513.53. The average's loss of 35.67 points for the week was its biggest since it fell 35.78 Sept. 17-21, 1984.

Analysts said it might take more time for the market to recover its balance after the sudden pessimistic swing this week in expectations about interest rates.

Falling rates have been cited as a primary force behind the dramatic advance that carried stock prices to record highs as recently as last Tuesday. Without that favorable influence, brokers say, stocks may be in for some further turbulence.

In the daily tally on the Big Board, declining issues slightly outnumbered advances. The exchange's composite index of all its listed common stocks dipped .05 to 118.82.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on rgional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 146.11 million shares.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials lost .26 to 228.46, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was down .15 at 205.96.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market rose .48 to 137.88. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 243.96, down .36.

Merrill Lynch led the active list, down ⅞ at 37⅛. The stock has benefited lately from heavy volume in the securities markets and takeover rumors, but those rumors drew further denials from the company and other parties Friday.

GATX jumped 3⅛ to 38⅞. Leucadia National Group and affiliates said Thursday they had effectively acquired a 5.26 percent interest in GATX, and might seek to gain control of the company.

Among actively traded blue chips, Ford Motor rose ⅝ to 55⅝, but International Business Machines dropped 1⅞ to 148½ and American Telephone & Telegraph lost ⅛ to 23⅞.

Comdisco was the day's biggest percentage loser, falling 6½ to 20⅝. The Internal Revenue Service sought to assess the company $200 million in what it interpreted as back taxes due. Comdisco said it went to the Tax Court to contest the point.

THE ACES®

BOBBY WOLFF

"Logic: the art of thinking and reasoning in strict accordance with the limitations and incapacities of the human misunderstanding."
— Ambrose Bierce.

South was sure he knew how to play today's trump suit. East's preemptive bid "told" him that if anyone was void in trumps, it was bound to be East. The side suits were a different matter.

Dummy's heart ace won, and South correctly led a low trump to his ace. Since East was known to have six hearts, the odds were decidedly in favor of spade length being with West. With East's void disclosed, two more leads exhausted the outstanding trumps, South taking the confirmed finesse against West. However, picking up the trump queen was not enough; South still had to avoid the loss of four minor suit tricks.

To win against any distribution, South led a heart to dummy's king and ruffed a heart. Next came a diamond to dummy's ace, and dummy's last heart was ruffed. South was now able to surrender the diamond queen without caring who won. Regardless of which defender took the trick, he would be forced to offer a ruff and discard or to break the club suit, giving South a sure club trick.
